 An Endeavour to poison parents a Priest or Magistrate is punishable, as if the Crime had been Consummated McLean 2. Crim. 8. 56. But none are to be Concluded guilty of poisoning, unless it certainly appear that the person was intended to such a person, as had died by poisoning, as Collected from the following out ward signs and tokens, viz. black and blue spots on on the Body, forming at the Mouth, frequent Vomiting, a Swelling and Blackness of the Nails &c. To to which the Judge ought to take the Report of knowing Physicians upon oath, after their Visiting the Body, whether the poison given was Deadly, or Not Capzov. lib. n. 3. 4. 7. And Because the tokens of one dying by poison are Very fallacious, and may proceed from inward causes, as poison bred in the Body, or Malignant humours; a corrupt air or vicicar living &c. It ought to be Manifest that the poison was truly given to the Deceased by the party Accused.

 Which his own Confession doth not sufficiently prove, unless other presumptions Convince us that he brought poison was at odd or Amance with the Deceased, or that he expected Benefit by his Death, or was a safe person from whom such an ill turn might have been Expected; or that his having bought poison was proved after he had denied it, that he was a Mischivous Quall. 122. n. 62 & 69. such a presumption being a Incomparably to administer poison to one so far from offering it safe, whose they cannot be supposed to understand with the Nature, and the patient's danger. This be able to an arbitrary punishment, Capzov. lib. n. 20. n. 549. It was once Done too, and not Decided (see from any 1676 William Kennedy) whether the giving too proquently and in too great a quantity drugs not poison-able to one contrary to the Nature of said drugs, as ing down his Body and killing him Imperceptibly, in order to steal his goods after his Death, and to conceal a former theft, was punishable, as it was pleaded for the pannel, that no Criminal death could be found on the furnishing drugs not poisonable only by excess in the quantity, and too frequent use. Because 1 of those can be no Certain Rule as to this Reason of the great Difference between humane Constitution and the temperature of Mans body, some require in a far greater proportion than others, and if it were other-
